SECTION – D
(Long Answer Type Questions)

(4 × 5 = 20)

30. (a) "The Gandhian idea of Satyagraha emphasized the power of truth and struggle against injustice." Explain the statement with examples. 5

Answer: Mahatma Gandhi's idea of Satyagraha was rooted in the belief that truth and non-violent resistance could overcome oppression and injustice. For example, the Salt March in 1930 was a non-violent protest against the British salt tax, demonstrating the power of collective civil disobedience. Gandhi's approach inspired movements for civil rights and freedom worldwide, showcasing the effectiveness of truth and non-violence in challenging unjust systems.

OR

30. (b) How did people belonging to different communities, regions, and language groups develop a sense of collective belonging in late nineteenth-century India? Explain with examples. 5

Answer:

In the late nineteenth century, people from various communities, regions, and language groups in India developed a sense of collective belonging through several means:

1. Cultural Symbols and Icons: Symbols such as Bharat Mata, depicted by artists like Abanindranath Tagore, played a crucial role in unifying people. Bharat Mata, a representation of the motherland, evoked feelings of patriotism and unity among Indians.

2. Literature and Folklore: Writers and poets used literature and folklore to spread nationalist ideas. For example, Bankim Chandra Chattopadhyay's song "Vande Mataram" became a rallying cry for freedom fighters, fostering a sense of national pride and unity.

3. Nationalist Histories: The writing and dissemination of nationalist histories that highlighted India's rich cultural heritage and glorious past helped create a collective identity. These histories countered colonial narratives and inspired pride among Indians.

4. Festivals and Celebrations: The celebration of festivals like Ganesh Chaturthi and Durga Puja became occasions for public gatherings and expressions of nationalism. These events transcended regional and religious boundaries, bringing people together in the spirit of freedom.

5. Political Movements: Participation in political movements such as the Swadeshi Movement, which promoted the use of Indian goods and the boycott of British products, created a shared purpose among diverse groups. The movement encouraged people to see themselves as part of a larger national struggle.

OR

31. (a) "Promotion of energy conservation is an important plank of sustainable energy." Explain the statement with examples. 5

Answer:

- Resource Efficiency: Promoting energy conservation ensures that energy resources are used more efficiently, reducing waste and extending the lifespan of non-renewable resources. For example, using LED bulbs instead of incandescent ones can significantly reduce electricity consumption.

- Environmental Impact: Energy conservation helps to minimize environmental pollution. By reducing the demand for energy, fewer fossil fuels are burned, leading to lower emissions of greenhouse gases and pollutants. For instance, improving insulation in buildings can reduce the need for heating and cooling, thus conserving energy.

- Economic Benefits: Conservation measures can lead to substantial cost savings for individuals, businesses, and governments. Investing in energy-efficient technologies can reduce energy bills and lower operating costs. For example, industries that implement energy-efficient processes can save on energy costs and improve their competitiveness.

OR

31. (b) "Energy is required for all kinds of activities." Explain this statement with examples. 5

Answer:

- Industrial Activities: Energy is essential for running machines, manufacturing products, and processing raw materials. Factories rely on electricity, coal, gas, and other energy sources to operate efficiently.

- Transportation: Energy fuels vehicles, ships, airplanes, and trains, enabling the movement of goods and people. For instance, gasoline powers cars, while electricity can power electric trains.

- Household Activities: Everyday tasks such as cooking, heating, cooling, and lighting depend on energy. Households use electricity, natural gas, and other energy sources to maintain comfort and convenience.

32. (a) Democracy is a better form of government than dictatorship. Analyse. 5

Answer:

- Participation and Representation: Democracy allows citizens to participate in the decision-making process through voting and elections, ensuring that the government represents the people's will. In contrast, a dictatorship centralizes power in the hands of a single ruler or a small group, limiting public participation.

- Accountability and Transparency: Democratic governments are accountable to the people and are subject to checks and balances. They must operate transparently and justify their actions. Dictatorships often lack accountability, leading to unchecked power and potential abuse.

- Protection of Rights: Democracies protect individual freedoms and human rights, promoting equality and justice. Dictatorships may suppress dissent, curtail freedoms, and violate human rights to maintain control.

OR

32. (b) Democracy accommodates social diversities. Analyse. 5

Answer:

- Inclusivity: Democracies provide platforms for diverse groups to express their views and participate in governance. This inclusivity helps to integrate various cultural, ethnic, and social groups into the political process.

- Conflict Resolution: Democratic systems encourage dialogue and negotiation, facilitating peaceful resolution of conflicts among different groups. For example, representative institutions like parliaments can address grievances and find common ground.

- Policy Formulation: Democracies are more likely to create policies that consider the needs and interests of diverse communities. This approach promotes social cohesion and unity.

33. (a) "Rapid improvement in technology has been one major factor that has stimulated the globalization process." Explain the statement with examples. 5

Answer:

- Communication: Advances in technology, such as the internet and mobile phones, have revolutionized communication, making it easier and faster to connect with people worldwide. For instance, businesses can communicate with international clients and partners in real-time.

- Transportation: Technological innovations in transportation, like container shipping and air travel, have reduced the time and cost of moving goods and people across the globe. This improvement facilitates international trade and tourism.

- Information Sharing: Technology enables the rapid dissemination of information, knowledge, and ideas across borders. Online platforms, social media, and digital publications allow for instant sharing and collaboration, fostering global connections.

OR

33. (b) "Foreign trade and foreign investment policies are the aspects of liberalization and globalization." Explain the statement with examples. 5

Answer:

- Trade Liberalization: Removing trade barriers, such as tariffs and quotas, encourages international trade. For example, free trade agreements between countries facilitate the exchange of goods and services, promoting economic growth.

- Foreign Investment: Policies that attract foreign direct investment (FDI) help integrate domestic economies into the global market. For instance, multinational corporations investing in local industries bring capital, technology, and expertise, boosting economic development.

- Economic Integration: Liberalization policies create an open and competitive economic environment, encouraging cross-border business activities. Examples include special economic zones (SEZs) that offer incentives to foreign investors, fostering economic integration.

34. Read the following source and answer the questions that follow: 4

Print and Censorship

The power of the printed word is most often seen in the way governments seek to regulate and suppress print. The colonial government kept continuous track of all books and newspapers published in India and passed numerous laws to control the press.

During the First World War, under the Defense of India Rules, 22 newspapers had to furnish securities. Of these, 18 shut down rather than comply with government orders. The Sedition Committee Report under Rowlatt in 1919 further strengthened controls that led to imposition of penalties on various newspapers. At the outbreak of the Second World War, the Defense of India Act was passed, allowing censoring of reports of war-related topics. All reports about the Quit India Movement came under its purview. In August 1942, about 90 newspapers were suppressed.

34.1 What method did the colonial government employ to keep track of Indian newspapers? 1

Answer: The colonial government kept track of Indian newspapers by requiring them to furnish securities under the Defense of India Rules. They also imposed controls through acts like the Sedition Committee Report, which led to further impositions of penalties on various newspapers.

34.2 How did the colonial government's laws affect the press? 1

Answer: The colonial government's laws affected the press by imposing strict censorship and regulations, leading to the suppression of about 90 newspapers during the Quit India Movement in August 1942. This control stifled the freedom of expression and prevented the dissemination of information related to war and political movements.

During the First World War, under the Defense of India Rules, 22 newspapers had to furnish securities. Of these, 18 shut down rather than comply with government orders. The Sedition Committee Report under Rowlatt in 1919 further strengthened controls that led to imposition of penalties on various newspapers. At the outbreak of the Second World War, the Defense of India Act was passed, allowing censoring of reports of war-related topics. All reports about the Quit India Movement came under its purview. In August 1942, about 90 newspapers were suppressed.

34.3 Analyse the impact of the 'Sedition Committee' on Newspapers. 1

Answer: The Sedition Committee had a significant impact on newspapers by strengthening the controls over the press. It led to:

1. Suppression of Information: Newspapers faced strict censorship, preventing them from publishing news about political movements and war-related topics.

2. Penalties and Shutdowns: Many newspapers were forced to shut down or comply with the government's stringent rules, resulting in a loss of independent journalism and restricted flow of information to the public.

Project Tiger

Tiger is one of the key wildlife species in the faunal web. In 1973, the authorities realized that the tiger population had dwindled to 1,827 from an estimated 55,000 at the turn of the 20th century. The major threats to tiger population are numerous, such as poaching for trade, shrinking habitat, depletion of prey base species, growing human population, etc. The trade of tiger skins and the use of their bones in traditional medicines, especially in the Asian countries left the tiger population on the verge of extinction. Since India and Nepal provide habitat to about two-thirds of the surviving tiger population in the world, these two nations become prime targets for poaching and illegal trade.

'Project Tiger', one of the well-publicised wildlife campaigns in the world, was launched in 1973. Tiger conservation has been viewed not only as an effort to save an endangered species but with equal importance as a means of preserving biotypes of sizeable magnitude. Corbett National Park in Uttarakhand, Sunderbans National Park in West Bengal, Bandhavgarh National Park in Madhya Pradesh, Sariska Wildlife Sanctuary in Rajasthan, Manas Tiger Reserve in Assam, and Periyar Tiger Reserve in Kerala are some of the tiger reserves of India.

35.1 Why was 'Project Tiger' considered a significant step for Tiger Conservation? 1

Answer: 'Project Tiger' was considered a significant step for tiger conservation because it aimed at protecting and increasing the dwindling tiger population in India through the establishment of tiger reserves and implementing measures to prevent poaching and habitat destruction. It brought global attention to the critical situation of tigers and garnered support for conservation efforts.

35.2 What role did India play in the global tiger population? 1

Answer: India plays a crucial role in the global tiger population as it provides habitat for about two-thirds of the surviving tiger population in the world. This makes India a key player in the efforts to conserve and protect tigers from extinction.

35.3 Mention any two major threats to the wildlife species. 2
Answer:

1. Poaching for Trade: Wildlife species, including tigers, are often poached for their skins, bones, and other body parts, which are traded illegally for traditional medicines and other uses.

2. Habitat Shrinkage: The destruction and fragmentation of natural habitats due to human activities such as deforestation, agriculture, and urbanization significantly threaten the survival of wildlife species.

37. (a) Two places A and B have been marked on the given political outline map of India. Identify them with the help of the following information and write their correct names on the lines drawn near them: 4
